DAVID AUTOR

David H. Autor is a Ford Professor in the MIT Department of Economics, co-director of the NBER Labor Studies Program, and co-leader of both the MIT Work of the Future Task Force and the J-PAL Work of the Future. His research explores the impact of technological change and globalization on labor markets, job polarization, earnings, and inequality. His recent book, The Work of the Future: Building Better Jobs in an Age of Intelligent Machines, concerns the impact of demographic shifts, information technology, and remote work on US labor markets. He recently received the Heinz 25th Special Recognition Award for his work “transforming our understanding of how globalization and technological change are impacting jobs and earning prospects for American workers.”
